THE PRESENTATION PERSONAL DESCRISO Chair. Resulted - Wiskins of the Principal or in other words, the lottery drawing to connection with the Union Home and School Festival, was resumed yesterday morning. at the Cooper Institute. The wheel was set la motion a few minutes after ten o'clock. Int which hour the lower hall of the builddug was crowded with ticket-holders, the attendance being larger than on the first day. The audience comprised a large number of inds and young ladies, who were anxious to win one of the $10 prizes, or those of less value, which were drawn for those of less value, which were drawn for yesterday. Before the wheel was set in motion, and before the blind man drew forth number "360,702," ticket-holders de clared that "they didn't care about winning anything but the $10,000 prize. When that chauce was gone, "Well," they meditated, "carriage and horace, or a house and lot in Itariem, or skeodiya isn't so bad." All these have been drawn, and the unlucky ones console themselves with the idea "that a $10 or even a $3 prize will be better than nothing." And no they watch and will, no doubt, continue "to do so until the last prize ticket has been drawn. Yesterday, over one thousand tickets were drawn from the wheel—one hundred being taken out after every turn of the machine. The constant mixing up of the tickets produces a quantity of cardboard dust, which flies out every time the door is opened, and, in a few hours, completely powders the blind man who draws the tickets. It is expected that all the prizes will be drawn by three o'clock this aiternoon. The following are the names of the fortunate individuals who carried off the most rahable prizes:

Spring. This occasion was always a great festival at Parnassus, and all the gods and goddesses joined to do honor to Apollo, the god of the sun, and received him with great pemp. In the picture, therefore, is Apollo drawn in his chariot by swans, and surrounded by the muses on his way to Olympus: while Psyche and Ariadne are advancing to meet him, accompanied by Bacchus and Comus. A Herald (Fauna) and a Cupid bearing pulm (pax) fly before Apollo, announcing his arrival, while a group of dancing figures of idealistic loveliness follow him expressing their joy. The execution of these paintings is so excellent that words fall in which to convey any idea of their grand effect. We have never seen more elaborate works, and we are certain that there is no superior to be found anywhere in the superior to be found anywhere.

ALLEGED EXTORTION IN THE CUSTOM House .- In the U. S. Circuit Court yesterday the case of John D. Westfall agt. Hiram day the case of John D. Westfall agt. Hiram Barney and Sheridan Shook, was up before Judge Smalley. The plaintiffs in this case imported a quantity of gin, the duty on which, under the act of July 1852, is $1 per gallon. This amount the plaintiff tendered to Collector Barney and demanded his property. The Collector refused to deliver it to him, alleging that under section 7th of the act of March, 1854, an excise tax of 40 cents per gallon in addition to the duty the argument of counsel in full, directed a verdict for the Government.

IMPORTANT TO LOTTERY DEALERS-THEY MUST PAY GOVERNMENT TAX .- In December last two indictments were presented in the U. S. District Court against William Craft, a lottery dealer, charging him with violation of the Internal Revenue Law, by selling lottery tickets without paying the special U.S. tax. The defendant's counsel demurred to the indictment, on the ground that the Revenue Law, in respect to taxing lottery tickets, was unconstitutional, as the Constitution of New York State prohibited their sale. The United States took issue by joining demurrer, Judge Nelson, of the U.S. Court, sustained the demurrer of the defendant, but the case finally went to the Supreme Court of the U.S., which (as per dispatches in yesterday's SUS) has just decided that the U.S. Revenue Law of 1866, imposing a special tax on lottery ticket dealers is valid, and can be enforced against them in the State of New York.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE. -Affray on Shipboard .- George Condon and John Conners, employed on board a ship in the East River on Monday quarreled, and during the af-fray Conners knocked Condon down by striking him with a heavy lump of coal. It is alleged that Conners then best Condon in a most brutal manner. Conners was ar-raigned before Justice Hogan yesterday and held to bail to answer the charge.

Swindling the Relatives of Criminals .- N young man of good address has been recent ly carrying on an extensive swindle in this city. He would obtain the names of percity. He would obtain the names of persons having relatives in Sing Sing, and then go to them and say that such persons had recently been injured by an explosion in a quarry at Sing Sing, and if they wished to see their relatives alive, they must immediately go to that place. He would usually obtain from five to twenty-five dollars for his supposed kindness, and not until the persons thus misled had reached Sing Sing, would they learn that they had been the dupes of a scoundrel. He has also obtained money from the friends of persons confined in the Tombs, by representing that he had influence with the Judges and could obtain their discharge,

It might possibly be unnecessary to cell the attention of the public more attendy to the unrite of this Institution, and the struggles which it is now experiencing nor sione to sensain, but to widen the circle of charitable love in which it has been for the lies two years so successfully operating, through the shiften years so successfully operating, through the shiften years so successfully operating, through the shiften years and the first and exertions of its early patron, were it not that the numerous demands which are daily being made upon the liberality of the City and the first, and to which it is almost impossible that, however deserving of it, an invertably favorable response can be made, have compelled the management not only to address their appeal to the caritable, but also to the garer and more amusement-loving perion of the community. They would also endeavor to present the claims of the Hoppital in a shape which appeals more directly to the mercantic feeling of deriving a positive benefit from the small invasument which is asked.

LAST AUSTRIA IT

By ANTHONY TROLLOGY.

Is the spring and early summer of the year now past—like year 1866—the hatred felt by Venetians towards the Austrian saddiers who held their city in threidom, had reached its culminating point. For years this hatred had been very strong, how strong and hardly be understood by the matter of the year this hatred had been very strong, how strong can hardly be understood by the position of the countery.

The aweset business of love-making During this time—through March and is the time who had nor business of love-making During this time—through March and is the time who shall can be back sand forwards to Verona, and had it with our and the understood by the last of the la andders who held their city in threidom, had reached its culminating point. For years this hatred had been very strong. how strong can hardly be understood by those who never recognized the fact that there had been, so to say, no mingling of the course here and Von Vincke discussed very freely the position of the courty—nothing of course being said as the those journeys to Bologna. Indeed, of them no one knew aught in the Campo San Luces. those who never recognized the fact that there had been, so to say, no mingling of the red had been, so to say, no mingling of the conquered and the conquerors, no process of assimilation between the Italian vascals and their German masters. Venuee as a city, was as purely Italian as though its barracks were filled with no Hungarian long-legged soldiers, and its cafes crowded with no white coated Austrian officers. And the regiments which held the town, lived as completely after their own fashion as though they were quartered in Peath or Prague or Vienna,—with this exception, that in Venice they were enabled—and, indeed, from circumstances were compelled—to exercise a palpable ascendancy which belonged to them nowhere else. They were masters, daily visible as such to the eye of every one who merely walked the narrow ways of the city, or strolled through the open squares; and as masters they were as exparate as the jailer is separate from the roof of the men no one knew aught in the Campo San Laces. They were such journeys to belong a many sister—or even to his wife, unless he has in her lover and this freely as would talk freely as would also the Carpas would apeak of the cause as though they two were simply philosophical lookers on, and were not and could not become actors—and though each of them to his mother or his sister—or even to his wife, unless to he has as much confidence in her courage as he has in her lover and they freely in the confidence in her courage as he has in her lover and the term and they two were simply philosophical lookers on, and were not and could not become actors—and though each of them would apeak of the cause as though they two were simply philosophical lookers on, and were not and could not become actors—and though each of them to his indeed, from a sum of them to his indeed, from a sum of them to his indeed, from her side of them to his indeed, from her sum of them to his indeed, from the outling of them to his indeed, from the outling of them to his indeed, from a master to he the open squares; and as masters they were as separate as the jatter is separate from the prisoner. The more complete was this repression, the greater was this difficulty, the stronger, of course, arose the latred of the Venetians for the Austrian soldiery. von Vincke was to be regarded as arrogates or unfit for matrimonial purposes. At the moment Carlo was absent at Verona, but was to return on the following morning It was decided at that conference between the two ladies and the lover, that he should be told, on his return, of Captain vos Vincke's intentions. Von Vincke himself would tell him.
